Close, yet so far, we drift as if sand caste have built our dreams and slowly, very slowly, are sifted back from where they came.

Sometimes we feel lost amid the shuf of everyday affairs. We become discouraged we lose our T

needing people... feeling for each other, sensing the
kinship that is ours;
we can make the time
to build the courage,
to liberate the spirit,
to discover the essence... to touch another Someone's life.

To Whomever has been concerned:

Two years have elapsed since we first came this way and began, for each of us, a new phase in our lives. In the interim between beginning and present, diverse and startling changes have battered and transformed our world: the resignations of a president and vice-president, the "energy crisis", and rising costs of living have all served to arouse people from the dull stupor of political ignorance and nonparticipation. Yet we, as young adults, have exhibited a pathetic lack of concern for, and understanding of, these changes.

On a personal level, are we any more aware? Have we gained any in our ability to cope with individual shortages? Do we understand the significance of our own actions and interactions?

Perhaps we have made no vast or radical changes in character or personality; but, if we have merely established within us a process of continual redefinition and evaluation of ourselves and our surroundings, we have still accomplished much; for it is in assessing relationships, altering attitudes, and forming opinions that we truly discover what our life is worth, what we make it worth by our concern.

To those of you who have been concerned, not only for yourself but for others; to those of you who have contributed in any way to make someone else's life a little more pleasant, the efforts of this book are dedicated.

"Well, Kid, it's May;

these two long years are finally over.

There were days when I thought it would never end,

but it really all happened so fast—

It scares me a little. Hell, it scares me a lot!

I guess looking back

is easier than looking ahead,

but the new faces may become just as precious as old,

and then

there's all the more

to share . . ."

Clouds are not the cheeks of angels, you know They're only clouds...
Happy sometimes... but you can never be sure

If I had longer arms - I'd push the clouds away,
Or make them hang above the water somewhere else.

But I'm just a man who needs and wants mostly things he'll never have...
looking for that thing that's hardest to find, [himself].

I've been going a long time now and along the way I've learned some things You have to take the good times, and save it for the time that isn't so.

I've never been able to push the clouds away by myself - help me - please
